

A photograph of a restaurant table set for two people. The table is covered with a white tablecloth. In the center, there are two wine glasses, one containing white wine and the other containing red wine. Behind the glasses are two bottles, one of wine and one of olive oil. In front of the glasses is a small bowl of tomatoes. To the left and right of the glasses are two place settings, each with a white plate, a white napkin, a silver fork, a silver knife, and a silver spoon. In the center of the table is a white rectangular plate with various tapas, including slices of chorizo, strips of fuet, and slices of Iberian ham. To the right of the tapas plate is a small metal basket containing a fried croquette. In the foreground, there are two plates of food: one with a large piece of bread and another with a plate of fried potatoes and a lemon wedge.
